

The St Magnus Way Cathedral Stone

Here is a site for weary pilgrims.
A place of welcome and of sanctuary,
hewn from Rognald's firm intent to honour Magnus.

This stone marks an ending,
to be grieved as well as celebrated,
miles that are over,
conversations behind.

It marks, too, a beginning,
a future that may be wept for
as well as cheered,
choices and consequences
only partly glimpsed.

The path of peace
was never smooth.

Take it.

The path of peace
is never easy.

Walk it.

The path of peace
will never be simply won.

Share it.

The path of peace
ends and then begins
on stones like these.

David McNeish
www.brokendavid.com